

Caira thunders back at water report

by Jeff Nazzaro

Town Manager Michael Caira Monday night thundered back at the "Report of Board of Selectmen Sub-committee of the Wilmington Water Department" with a 24 page report of his own. The report, which Caira read at Monday's board of selectmen's meeting, left subcommittee members Gerald Duggan and Diane Allan all-but-speechless as both reserved the right to comment on Caira's response at the next board meeting.

Chairman Chester Bruce, however, terminated the subcommittee and asked that all further comments be made either through the chair or the town manager.

While this may signify the end of the subcommittee's investigation, in a memorandum attached to Caira's report, Wilmington Chief of Police Bobby N. Stewart expressed concern "as to whether the administrative actions taken in 1992 were in fact sufficient given the current circumstances."

A 1992 investigation of the water and sewer department by the Wilmington Police Department and the Office of the Middlesex District Attorney uncovered "criminal violations," but law enforcement officials "were advised that [Caira's] office was in the process of reorganization of the Water and Sewer Department and would prefer to deal with these matters administratively," according to Stewart's communication to Caira.

In closing, Stewart suggested that he, Caira and town counsel meet with the District Attorney's Office "to ensure that these matters have been appropriately addressed."

Selectman Michael McCoy offered strong support to such action, stating any guilty persons "should go right to goddamn jail."

Caira states in his report that "Chief [Stewart] has informed me that recent developments and publicity pertaining to the Water Department has resulted in [the Police] Department receiving additional information prompting further investigative action."

Neither Caira nor Stewart, who attended Monday night's meeting, would comment on specific criminal allegations connected to the water department prior to its consolidation with the department of public works.

But in his report, Caira labels the previous system one of "mismanagement, duplication of services, contractual favoritism, misallocation of resources, irregular bidding practices, ethical violations, conflicts of interest and a public be damned attitude."

Caira further held no punches in systematically dismantling the report compiled earlier by Duggan and Allan, calling the entire subcommittee "investigation" an expensive, elaborate, unprofessional and unnecessary fishing expedition that came up empty.

"The report reflects the obvious bias of a subcommittee whose conclusions do not dignify the time, effort and money expended on the compilation of data, most of which was ignored and the balance of which was either misunderstood or misrepresented by the author of the report."

The subcommittee requested what amounted to 1,100 pages of information from the water and sewer department through the town manager, which Caira estimated Monday cost the taxpayers of Wilmington some $25,000.

Selectman Robert Cain voiced strong disapproval of the subcommittee and seized the opportunity to reiterate several points blatantly expressed in Caira's report before being limited by Bruce.

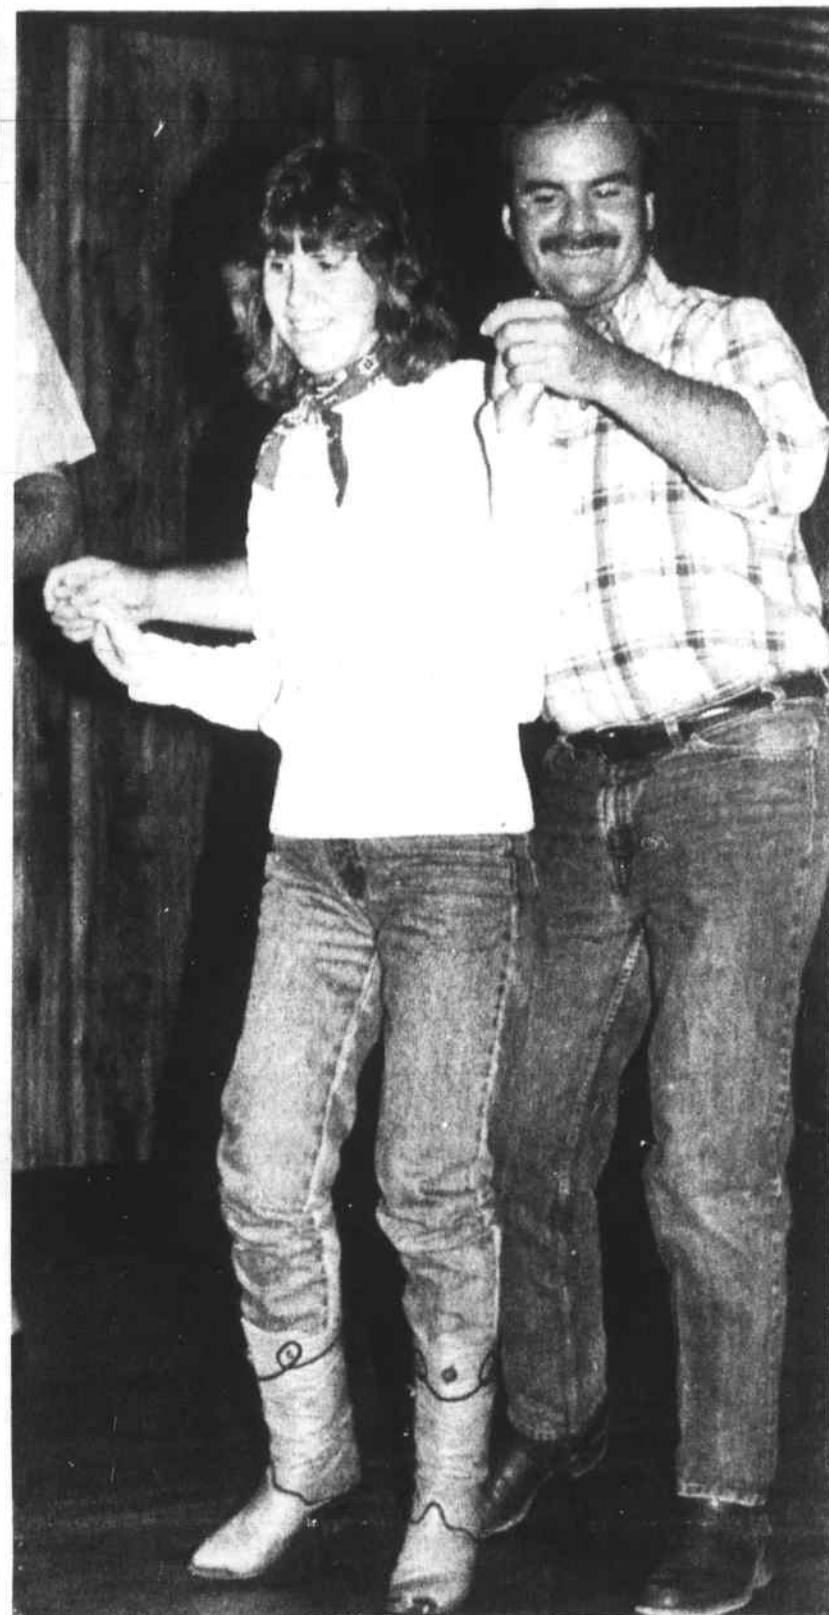

"Let's get this over with and get back to business," Bruce said in reference to the entire subcommittee affair.

McCoy, who has remained virtually silent on the issue, said "I have respect for [Allan and Duggan]. I have no problem with them in their investigation."

DEP's reforms 'an issue of affordability'

by Jeff Nazzaro

The Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) came to Wilmington High School Tuesday night as part of that agency's public hearing series on proposed Title 5 revisions. Title 5, which regulates on-site sewage treatment and disposal systems (septic tanks and cess pools), was last revised in 1978.

Key features of Title 5, the State Environmental Code for Subsurface Disposal of Sanitary Waste, include design criteria, sensitive areas - environmental and public health; routine maintenance and disposal of septicage and system upgrade and replacement.

The revisions propose a 150-foot setback for septic systems from drinking water supplies, a one acre requirement for four bedroom homes with septic systems, and a call for systems approved more than 15 years ago and lying in environmentally sensitive areas to be appraised within three years and upgraded within 10 years of passage of Title 5 revisions.

A crowd of close to 400 residents, "experts" and legislators, including Representative James Miceli and members of the Home Builders Association of Massachusetts (HBA) turned-out with the consensus leaning heavily against the DEP-proposed revisions to Title 5.

Miceli, in comparing the issue to the MWRA over-assessment of the Town of Wilmington, called the DEP's suggested reforms "an issue of affordability."

"I think it is un-affordable. I think we need to speak-up now," Miceli, who promised a grass-roots movement against the revisions if passed as is, told the crowd at the high school auditorium.

HBA of Mass. President John Marini said that "homeowners in Massachusetts who use on-site sewage disposal systems, or septic tanks to dispose of their wastes could be facing a bill of $10,000 to $40,000 to bring their systems into compliance with the regulations being proposed by the [DEP]."

According to Miceli, senior citizens in Wilmington would be particularly hard hit by the revisions.

But not everyone spoke against the newly-proposed regulations. Gabor Miskolczy, a member of the Carlisle

Board of Health, said he "believe[s]...regulations are not as strict as they should be for protecting the environment."

Lou Wagner, a water pollution specialist for the Mass. Audubon Society, told the gathering "we do need to keep in mind what we've been doing in the past [with sewage disposal] has caused a lot of public health problems."

In an "Executive Summary," the DEP attempts to clarify major concerns held by Bay State homeowners. Title 5 will, according to the summary:

- Not require that all existing on-site systems be upgraded, but only those "grossly substandard systems located in...sensitive environmental areas."
- Not require one acre of land for most new homes, but new homes in environmentally sensitive areas will need a 40,000 square foot lot for a 4 bedroom home, less land for a smaller home.

- Not require state-wide inspection of all systems every three years.
- Not result in new mandates for cities and towns.

Miceli contests that Wilmington is a "Zone 2 aquifer" and therefore "a lot of lots would be construed as [occupying] environmentally sensitive areas." This fact, Miceli stated, would cause "an extreme hardship to the [residents]."

Written comments on proposed Title 5 revisions may be forwarded to:

Cat shooting alarms Clark Street resident

by Jeff Nazzaro

A Clark Street resident is both alarmed and upset after discovering early Sunday morning that his cat had been shot in the shoulder with a .22 caliber gun.

"Now I got a three-legged cat," said the owner, who was hit with $800 worth of medical bills, for the hospitalization and amputation of his pet's leg.

The cat, Sam, a 15-month-old domestic cat, "should lead a normal life," according to veterinarians, the resident said.

"The whole idea of shooting a cat with a real [as opposed to a B.B.] gun is way out of line," said the resident, who is concerned about the prospect of someone taking pot shots at cats in the area.

"Some of the [resident's] neighbors have kids in their yards or other animals and that's a scary thought right there."

Amazing
Art

Mary Anne and Debbie Steen were honored at an assembly in the Woburn Street School on Monday morning. They were winners in a Crayola Dreammaker's art contest. The subject for the contest was a self-portrait, without the use of mirrors. Debbie and Mary Anne (both second graders) have been blind since birth. With the Steens are Principal Kate Conway (left) and Wilmington Art Teacher Marie Shack.

It's YOUR Money

BY JOYCE BRISBOIS
Certified Public Accountant

SHOULD YOU AMEND YOUR TAX RETURN?

It's not unusual to file an amended tax return if you find an error, a deduction you could have taken but didn't - two million people did it last year. This year there are other good reasons: two changes in the budget bill that are retroactive to 1992.

Self-employed individuals and S-corporation shareholders who pay their own medical insurance can deduct 25 percent of the cost. That deduction was supposed to disappear at the end of June '92. In addition, employer-provided educational assistance, which was to be taxable as of July '92, is tax free again through 1994, up to $5,250 a year. (Reimbursement for job-related courses may top that figure.) If withholdings have been taken for this year, check with the company.

It's smart to answer IRS questions before they're even asked; documenting the item you're changing with copies of cancelled checks, a Form 1099 or a written explanation attached to the amended return will reduce the likelihood that you'll trigger an audit.

Should you amend? You'll get good advice from the tax people at Joyce K. Brisbois, C.P.A.

Town Pulse & Opinion

letters to the editor

"I'd like to know what the $75 covers"

Dear Larz:
My daughter joined Pop Warner Cheerleading for fun and to be with her friends. Practices started in August and she made them all until September, when school and soccer practices began. During some of these practices my daughter informed me that the coach would make comments to her like: "You're too heavy to be a climber" and "You're too skinny to be a base." (she is 12 years old and weighs 95 pounds). Now, because my daughter did not make all the practices, she realized that she did not know the full routine for the competition which was approaching. She felt she should not compete in fear of ruining the team's chances of winning. A few weeks ago she was informed by her coach that she had to make a choice between cheerleading and soccer because she was not making all of the practices. She was also told she could not cheer at the games if she did not compete.

My point is, I paid $75 for my daughter to have fun, and it turned out she had to put up with a coach who insulted her and forced her to make a decision which I feel was very unreasonable. We, the parents try to encourage our children to get into sports to have fun and keep them off the streets and out of trouble. Then the children are forced to put up with the insults and pressures of decisions they are too young to have to make. I would truly like to know what the $75 per person covers, because over that cost we are forced into spending another $50 or more for special sneakers, socks, and white turtlenecks which they "have to have."

Well, if anyone should ask my opinion about having their daughter join Pop Warner Cheerleading, my answer will be, "don't!"

Sincerely,
Karen A. Tamilio

"...comparing our selection process to college recruiting violations is ridiculous..."

Dear Larz:
I would like to address the concerns expressed by an "anonymous" writer last week concerning the Wilmington Youth Basketball Association (WYBA). "This organization has been functioning for approximately 15 years offering traveling basketball competition. The teams play comparable players from surrounding towns (North Shore and Middlesex Valley).

This program is for those players whose basketball playing skills and abilities are at a level for more advanced coaching instruction, enabling them to compete outside of the recreational program, where instructional coaching is provided for every interested player. (I enjoy and have been actively involved in the Rec Program for the past five years.)

The WYBA has sixth, seventh and eighth grade teams. The only eligibility requirements for these teams are that the player's current school grade be at or lower than the team for which he is trying out, and that he be a Wilmington resident.

This means that any lower grade student may tryout for the sixth, seventh or eighth grade teams. Many past eighth grade teams have had fifth grade players on their rosters who qualified on the basis of their abilities. Possibly, this eligibility requirement has not been understood by the anonymous writer (and possibly others). If that was the case, a personal inquiry to our Association could have been made rather than to cast aspersions about the integrity of WYBA coaches.

I am disheartened at the comments made that question the motives of the persons involved in this program. No organization could ask for a more dedicated person than Paul Gargan, who unfortunately is in the process of retiring this year from the WYBA. He has always ensured that the only interest of WYBA is that of the children of Wilmington. He has not only coached teams, but has spent numerous hours coordinating practice times, game schedules, referees, tournaments, fundraising, dances, and addressing the many other details of the association. All on a voluntary basis.

The coaches volunteer because they love the sport of basketball and have an interest in providing a wholesome, competitive "team" activity in the community.

The only comment that had any validity was the anonymous writer's understanding of the agonizing job of a coach in informing players that they did not make the team. In any competitive tryout (academic, artistic, musical, sport) where the number of participants must be limited, not everyone can be selected. These decisions are made more difficult for those people who have coached and know these players personally. However, we do tell these players to stick with their playing, work on developing their skills, encourage them to participate in the Rec League, where they will have opportunities to improve their abilities with practice and games, and to tryout again next year.

The anonymous writer could have done the program a great service by expressing his/her concerns regarding the high costs of court rentals which limit the number of teams to one at each level that we can field, and is the major reason for the players' fee.

Lastly, the writer comparing our selection process to college recruiting violations is ridiculous. Also, the accusation that there are "given" players and "connected" parents demeans the coaches and the association.

Hopefully, the anonymous writer has not tarnished the integrity of the WYBA, nor the persons involved in its operation. Players will continue to be selected on the basis of their ability. I have agreed to undertake the responsibilities of this program from Paul Gargan. All rules and policies formulated by previous organizers will be continued under my upcoming supervision. Should anyone have any questions or concerns, please contact me.

"there were no meeting, no fund raising"

Dear Larz:
Last week Supt. of Schools O'Donnell provided information to the Town Crier on the School/Business Partnership, and in two instances referred to statements I'd previously made. She was incorrect on both counts. The School/Business Partnership was indeed "virtually eliminated" as I stated; that is not a "claim" I made to mislead parents. For at least a period of four to five months, there were no meetings, no fundraising, and there had been resignations submitted by people on the business side of the partnership. Second, if there is now lots of activity going on with the partnership, it certainly has not been "frequently updated" to parents via School Committee meetings as stated by the Supt.

In the last eight months there have perhaps been two references to the partnership at School Committee meetings; both were quick mentions of meeting dates and locations. The information Dr. O'Donnell provided to the Crier had not been previously communicated to parents. On both these points, I believe I am backed up by at least one committee member.

While I'm glad the administration has now provided us with information on the School/Business Partnership, I'm surprised it would take the fact of discrediting the parent seeking the information; especially since my statements had not referred to the administration in any way.

The October 31, 1968 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

For the first and only time, the front page was completely sold to advertising. To complete this "first" Harold Foley of Shamrock Liquors, purchased the last inch. When Larz commented at Rotary "the entire front page is sold with the exception of one inch." Mr. Foley came back with "I'll take it."

Elections were just around the corner so within his ad Mr. Foley explained that his establishment was not running for anything, but would probably do well at getting election parties off to a good start.

Postmaster William Lynch announced that parcel post and catalog rates would be increased in order to meet the pay raises granted postal employees the previous year.

The State Department of Public Works would soon be calling for bids for the construction of a new bridge over the B&M railroad at Nichols Street.

According to Nosey Nancy, the afghan project headed by Nellie Thompson, (mentioned here last week) was actually "called 'Project Afghan'" and included a group of people donating yarn, money and know-how to make afghans for veterans at Chelsea Naval Hospital.

Daniel Gentile of Salem Street was promoted to warehouse manager of the D.F. Munroe Co. on Middlesex Avenue.

Jeff Williamson was assigned to pitch for the Elmira New York team, AA in the Eastern League for the next year. A few years earlier, Jeff was voted the most valuable player in the Carling League.

Jane Botelho, for selling the greatest number of Booster buttons.

Elia's Market offered oysters at 79 cents a half pint; Maple Leaf bacon at 69 cents a pound; and Sunkist oranges 89 cents a dozen.

At Lucci's Super Market, one could purchase Heinz tomato soup, Jiffy frosting mix, Morton's salt or Martha White flap-stax for nine cents a package; American sausages, 69 cents a pound and fresh cauliflower, 29 cents a head.

Rubbish war!

The November 2, 1983 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

The November 22 election would decide the fate of high school improvements. On October 24, voters approved a bond issue for a $7.25 million renovation and addition. On November 22, the question would be asked differently, in the privacy of the voting booth whether they wished to override Prop. 2 1/2 to allow the high school addition to proceed.

A rubbish war was going on between Vining Disposal, whose contract was terminated at 4 p.m. Monday and SCA Services who began picking up rubbish on Tuesday. Vining did not give up easily and continued to pick up. They emptied only occasional barrels, leaving the new company to decide which areas had been covered and which had not.

The Horribles Parade included Ginny and Denise Cosgrove of Chestnut Street, both marched as ghosts; and Jennifer Noel Pocaro who entered the festivities as an angel. All three were pictured on the front page.

Jay P. Howe of Burlington Avenue was among the more than 10,000 freshmen enrolled at Pennsylvania State.

Janice Baldwin was among the more than 30 nurses from the US who met with Chinese colleagues while studying and observing first hand the health care available to Chinese women. The US nurses visited hospitals, clinics and child care centers in Shanghai, Peking and Hong Kong.

Gail Lombard was pictured as she greeted a teammate with a high five during a break in recent MVC basketball action.

Baldwin completes 25 perfect years

The November 2, 1983 edition of the Town Crier of Tewksbury noted that:

With his hands behind his back, Rick Frederickson was pictured as he took the last bite from a donut on a string during Halloween festivities held at K of C Hall.

The school committee decided to seek a return on what Chairman Tom Cooke said was the committee's "investment" in the local teaching rather than go outside to recruit a science department head. On a 3-2 vote, the group promoted science teacher Marilyn O'Brien to the post.

Past President Fred Baldwin, was pictured as he received a presentation from King Lion Rick McClellan. Baldwin was being honored for 25 years of perfect attendance at Lions meetings.

Jason Hyde pictured at the K of C Halloween party, was dressed as a trash can. His imaginative costume won him a calculator.

Miceli expects to lose Precinct 3

by Jeff Nazzaro

Rep. James Miceli has called it a "strong possibility" that he will in the future be representing five of Wilmington's six state legislative districts.

"This is subject to amendment and to debate...but the guess would be probably Precinct 6 back in my [the 20th] district," Miceli, a member of the House Redistricting Committee, said recently.

As a result, Miceli expects to lose representation of Precinct 3 in Tewksbury, which comprises the northern corner of the town.

Miceli again stated his desire to represent all of both Tewksbury and Wilmington, reminding, however that "this is all subject to the [population] numbers."

"Things are always subject to change," Miceli warned, stressing that amendments and debate will not occur until "the end of [this] week."

The prospect of Miceli gaining a Wilmington precinct comes after a unanimous board of selectmen vote at their September 27 meeting to "direct members of its legislative delegation to work toward unifying Wilmington's house districts into one representative district," according to a letter from Town Manager Michael Caira to House Redistricting Chairman Kevin O'Sullivan.

Caira's correspondence demonstrates a similar stance, citing "Wilmington voters have repeatedly expressed their preference for a unified legislative district in the House of Representatives."

Wilmington school news

Ski Club

The Ski Club is a program designed to teach interested Wilmington students from grade four through 12 to ski. Lessons are provided for every level of ability, from those who have never skied before, to the expert. First time skiers generally "get the hang of things" by the third or fourth lesson and then fully enjoy the new sport.

The more advanced improve their skills and pick up some of the finer techniques that bring mastery of the sport.

This year's instructional program is:

Intermediate school students, Monday afternoons starting January 3; fourth and fifth grade students, Wednesday afternoons starting January 5; high school students, Wednesday afternoons starting Jan. 5.

Buses leave from the school at dismissal time for the ride to Bradford Ski Area, Bradford, until 6 p.m. and arrive back at the Fourth of July Building parking lot at 6:45.

The cost of the six week program is $103.00; $94 (without the lessons, just to ski).

This is run by Mr. Frank Birmingham and Mr. Bill Peabody of the Wilmington public schools.

Shawsheen elementary

On October 19, the second graders and parents at the Shawsheen school walked to the Shawsheen River for their annual trip of leaf gathering, environmental awareness and study of the famous "aqueduct" of the Middlesex Canal.

Over 100 children, parents and teachers walked to the aqueduct historical site on Route 129 at the Wilmington/Billerica town line and then to the conservation land at the end of Grace Drive along the Shawsheen River.

Our children learned about the Middlesex Canal as well as wildlife and foliage. The weather was perfect and so were the children.

The tour was conducted by Mr. Barry, a second grade teacher at the Shawsheen, a local historian and environmentalist and assisted by Miss Willey and Miss Mercurio.

Mrs. Creeden and Mrs. Rowe, all teachers at the school.

"If it weren't for the help of the parents who assisted, as well as the teachers, we would never have been able to do this trip," Rick Barry said. "Thanks to everyone including the continued support of Mr. Gorham, our principal."

Listen My Teachers

by Tarryn Guarino
Listen my teachers and you shall hear.

That I know the poem of Paul Revere.

It took me only a day to learn it
If I get 100 then I will earn it.
I will not copy; I will not cheat,
Because my memory can't be beat.
I don't have to hear it with my ear,
Because I know the poem of Paul Revere.

As part of their study of the Revolutionary War, students in grade five memorize the first few verses of Longfellow's poem "Paul Revere." Tarryn Guarino, one of the students in Mrs. Maxey's class, came up with her own wonderful version.

Delayed opening times for Wilmington schools

The Wilmington School Committee at its October 13 meeting voted to implement a Delayed Opening of Schools Policy in the event of inclement weather. The following are the delayed starting times and bus pickups for the schools:

High School will begin at 8:50 with bus pickup beginning at 8:20; middle schools at 9:30 a.m. with bus pickup beginning at 8:50; elementary schools, 10 a.m., pickup at 9:30; Wildwood School, 10:40 a.m., pickup at 10.

Morning kindergarten classes will be canceled. Regular schedule for afternoon kindergarten classes. Morning extended day and pre-school classes will be canceled. Schools will end at the normal time. Staff will report 20 minutes ahead of starting time.

ARE YOU PROTECTED?
 by Edward H. Wilkens

DEVASTATING CONSEQUENCES
 QUESTION: Does it make financial sense to increase my auto personal liability coverage to more than the minimum required?

ANSWER: It certainly does. The financial consequences of having too little liability insurance protection can be devastating. Serious accidents take place every day and settlements in the hundreds of thousands are not uncommon. Considering the huge possible costs of hospitalization and medical expenses, you could literally be risking everything you own plus your future dreams.

In most cases, increasing limits higher than the minimum is very moderate compared with the increased protection gain.

YOU CAN avoid financial disaster by increasing your auto personal liability coverage.

Halloween Happenings

Funland jumps into Halloween

by Bill Conlon

Funland, on Main Street, has been a fixture in Tewksbury for years. The amusement complex boasts miniature golf, batting cages, and a moonwalk for kids, and has long been a summertime favorite for the town.

But this year, Funland is taking a big, big risk. The fun center is now banking on Halloween, with a new look and new features.

Owner Bill McCann, who took over daily operation of the business three years ago from his father, Ralph, said his sister asked him on Labor Day about doing something for Halloween. He said she wanted something safe for her kids to do on Halloween, and asked if Bill could set something up.

Bill asked around, and found at least 80 other people who wanted a Halloween observance, so he took a risk and started things rolling.

Funland is now boasting the new Funland Fright Festival, which will run until Halloween this weekend.

Bill said he contacted the FAST Corp., in Wisconsin, for some new fiberglass statues for the miniature golf course. FAST (for fiberglass animals, statues and trademarks) had to put on three shifts to finish his request, but they did it, and they even provided their own truck to deliver the new statues. In all, seven new statues are gracing Funland, such as a giant spider, a giant bat, and others.

The miniature golf course is now a haunted golf course, with frights at every turn. Bill takes due pride in the new performances and effects.

A high-pressure water sprayer was installed, generating a ground fog throughout the golf course on a windless night. Every hole features a frightening aspect, and Bill has hired a number of acting students and professional performers to staff the facility.

For the younger crowd, there is a kid's karaoke stage, goats and lambs, and magicians and jugglers, with most of the children's attractions set up in a tent in the center of the complex. The gates to the lot are kept closed, so all parking must be done in the parking lot on Main Street.

Admission is $5, and Bill said he has heard some grumbling at first about the cost, but later some of those who grumbled have thanked him for "bringing back Halloween the way it used to be."

At first, Funland had their frights set up in two levels, Bill said, one for young children, and another for adults and those who could handle a bigger scare. Now, he said, a single format makes for easier scheduling and Funland can handle crowds of any size.

The Funland Fright Festival begins around sunset, and continues to closing time, which varies. Call 851-3241 for any inquiries about times, dates, etc.

Bill McCann said Funland hopes to continue its new Halloween tradition, running the Funland Fright Festival in October for years to come.

Poison Control offers Halloween safety tips

The Massachusetts Poison Control Center recommends the following precautions for the safety of little witches, goblins, and ghosts during Halloween.

Treats

- *Children should be urged to wait until they return home before eating treats. Parents should inspect all treats before they are eaten.
- *Treats with torn or unsealed wrapping should be discarded immediately. Fruit treats should be washed and cut open to check for foreign objects.
- *Homemade treats should be discarded.
- *Taking candy or other treats for x-ray is strongly discouraged; many substances cannot be detected by this method. Moreover, x-raying is no guarantee of safety and is costly in terms of health resources, without benefit to the public.
- *Any suspicious treats or harmful objects should be reported to the local police.
- *Parents of children with food allergies should carefully check the ingredient list of treats.

Trick or treating

- *Parents should set curfews for children.
- *Children should understand that they must trick or treat only at homes of neighbors they know.
- *Walkways and lawns can be made safe by removing obstacles and leaving outside lights on.
- *Pets should be kept indoors or confined to an area where they will not interfere with children.

Costumes

- *Children's masks should be easy to look through and breathe through.
- *Costumes should be flame resistant and roomy enough to allow a child to dress warmly underneath.
- *Face paints, glues and glitter should be made of non-toxic material. Parents should be aware that some children can have allergic reactions to these products.
- *Neon glow sticks and neck bands contain a chemical that is irritating to the skin and could be harmful to eyes. Teach children not to bang, crush, or throw glowsticks, or to risk breaking the outer surface in any way that might release the chemical inside.

Pumpkin/Jack o' lanterns

- *Children can have fun drawing a face on a pumpkin and scraping out the contents, but an adults should do the carving.
- *Jack-o-lanterns with candles should be watched carefully and be placed where they cannot start a fire.

Parents are reminded that the telephone number for the Mass. Poison Center is 232-2120, or toll free, 1-800-682-9211.

19 Lloyd Road, Wilmington, MA
(508) 658-6817

You've made the decision to add on to your home, but there are still so many questions. Should you add one room... maybe two... a new dormer... a room off the back... a second floor... an inlaw apartment? You have an idea of what you'd like, but you can't quite picture the finished product. You may even have already chosen a builder but, after looking through all his plans, you haven't seen anything that quite matches what you had in mind. Maybe it's time to call a residential designer.

Richard Medeiros, owner of RJM Designs, has been a Wilmington resident for 27 years. Even if you don't know him, you've probably seen some of his design work. Richard's projects include Wilmington's Buzzell Senior Center, the addition to the 4th of July Building, and the WCTV studios.

That's nice, but you weren't planning on anything quite so large. No problem. Richard will tackle any project... from a 12x12 addition, to a complete new home. And, even though designing is his first love, he is also a licensed builder.

RJM Designs is located at 19 Lloyd Road, in Wilmington. Give him a call at 658-6817, and let him make your dream house a reality.

New England Ventilation Co., Inc.

514 Main Street, Tewksbury, MA 01876
(508) 858-0630

New England Ventilation is a fabrication house. They do ductwork, and they've made stainless steel sinks for Friendly's Ice Cream, and they do in-house work for Raytheon, and they fabricate stainless steel, aluminum and exotic products for M.I.T.... and they also work directly with homeowners and small businesses!

Why in the world would a homeowner need a fabrication house? How about a copper hood for over a stove or kitchen island? Maybe a stainless steel backsplash for the kitchen? A fireplace enclosure... decorated louvers... window sills... specially fabricated gutters... auto floorboards... a brass door kickplate... copper window tops? Just use your imagination!

New England Ventilation works with copper, brass, stainless steel, aluminum, angle iron, I-beams, stainless steel perforated, aluminum diamond plate... they will fabricate any kind of metal into anything you want! Bring your plans to them, or explain what you want, or even have them send someone out to see what you need done. Their prices are reasonable, and they'll get it done fast!

New England Ventilation is located at 514 Main Street in Tewksbury. That's across from the Purity Plaza, in the building with the old water tank. They're open to the public from 7:00am to 3:30pm, or call them at (508) 858-0630.

Art show at Family Medical Center

Given a box of crayons, colored markers, a blank piece of paper and a large imagination, it's incredible what children can create. Their drawings tell a unique story. It speaks to the viewer of how a child interprets their world and the events and circumstances in their life.

Through art, students from second grade classes in the towns of Wilmington, Andover, No. Reading, Reading, Tewksbury, and Wilmington were recently invited to tell their own stories about their experiences with healthcare.

What do seven year-olds feel when they visit their doctors' office? What do they think about the people who work in the healthcare industry? What does being healthy mean to them? These answers are surprisingly vivid in these children's drawings - all of which will be displayed at the Winchester Hospital Family Medical Center's second annual Health Calendar Art Show from 5:30 to 7 p.m. Monday, November 8 at the Winchester Hospital Family Medical Center in Wilmington. Art work from each town will be represented in a 1994 children's art calendar.

Art work Linda Deering from the Trahan School in Tewksbury prepares her entry for the Art Show.

Field hockey tradition intact

by James Pote

The Wilmington High School girls field hockey team did it again, as they beat Tewksbury yesterday afternoon 5-0, to clinch yet another State Tournament berth.

After losing 11 seniors from last year's team and only having three returning this year, it looked as if it would be a learning year for first-year head coach Jan Urquhart, who was named to the position after 22 years as an assistant.

However, the Wildcats' defense is what put them in this position. Junior Kerri Anderson leads the way, playing in her first year of field hockey and she has done an unbelievable job in goal.

"Kerri has played outstandingly all year," said Urquhart. So has (sophomore) "Leanne Hams and (junior) Kathleen Rooney have played great defense. It has been a great defensive year for us."

Kerri has put up excellent numbers, posting six shutouts, making 75 saves out of the 89 shots, for a save percentage of .842 over their 8-4-3 record.

"We have a lot of young talent. The JV team is mostly made up of all freshmen, and the addition of Bob Surran's youth program where over 50 girls have come out helps out a lot. We know that field hockey will always remain popular, therefore, we should become stronger and stronger for years to come," continued Urquhart.

The Wildcats have one game remaining, against Haverhill before they head into tournament play, where the matchups have yet to be determined.

Tough loss for Squirt C's

by James Pote

The Squirt C Youth Hockey team played another outstanding game, but they lacked the big offensive punch once again. Chris Rose played outstanding in between the pipes to keep Wilmington in the 2-0 deficit to Peabody.

Chris Cappozzi, Matt Waisnor and Jason Fogg played exceptionally well on the offensive side, while John Conley played great defense.

Another tourney for Wildcats

WHS girls roar to state tourney berth

by Jeff Nazzaro

One of the preseason goals coach Sue Hendee set for her Wilmington High School girls' varsity soccer team was a state tournament berth. Hendee and her talented squad of 19 young women achieved that goal last week with a pair of wins over Dracut and Notre Dame Academy of Tyngsboro on consecutive days at the Shawsheen School.

Wearing their home whites, but playing without the services of senior tri-captain Adrienne Fay, the Wildcats breezed over Dracut, 6-0, in an MVC contest Thursday before clinching the tourney berth by blanking Notre Dame, 2-0 Friday.

Thursday's match was over when junior halfback Nancy Pote scored on a play assisted by sophomore Nicole Ciaramaglia. From there, the girls cruised, racking up five more goals, including three by senior forward Laura DeMarco.

Before the half ended, Wilmington would add two more goals, showcasing their vast abilities in the process.

For the first score, sophomore Renée Vachon penetrated into the penalty area, headed the ball over the goalkeeper's head, then headed it over to wide-open tri-captain Jill Murphy, who fired the ball into the top of the net.

Minutes later, Vachon threaded a long, perfect crossing pass through the legs of a Dracut defender to Pote, who drew the keeper out and then poked the ball to DeMarco for an empty-net score.

At the half, Hendee warned against a let-down, telling her team "I don't care what the score is, I want us to play intensely."

But even still, the girls and their coach couldn't help having a little fun both on the field and the sidelines.

Late in the game, with Pote playing goal for starter Mary Armata, and senior fullback Lynette Sbrano at forward, DeMarco netted the hat trick on a funny ball that seemed to linger at the goal line before finally being stuffed in.

The light atmosphere marking the end of Thursday's game changed considerably in 24 hours as Wilmington attempted to clinch a tournament spot against a tough Notre Dame squad featuring the impressive talents of Tewksbury senior forward Karen Montgomery. In a previous game, the two teams had tied, 2-2.

But junior halfback Kerri Casella played brilliantly in a shadowing role, keeping Montgomery at bay, and Wilmington got goals from Fay and Pote in a 2-0 triumph.

After a scoreless first half, Fay, back in action after serving a two-game suspension for a red card incident against Reading last week, exhibited a flawless touch in chipping a long ball from the left side of the field over the keeper's head.

Pote added the second strike on a feed from junior halfback Jaime Forgett. Forgett brought the ball up-field, and with Pote, Fay and Vachon open on her right, led the ball to the talented triumvirate before Pote took honors and scored easily.

After the game, which gave the Wilmington girls their second consecutive and third-ever State Tournament berth, Hendee turned her coaching sights on another team goal.

"With two games left, our goal is second-place" in the MVC, Hendee said.

The women Wildcats travelled to Andover Tuesday night and finish their regular season schedule on the road against conference foe Lowell.

Big step for young Wildcats, 14-6

by James Pote

When the Wilmington High School varsity football team took its efforts into Haverhill last Friday night, all they were hoping for was a chance to get their first win of the season. They didn't accomplish that, but they accomplished a lot in the 14-6 loss at Haverhill.

"There has definitely been a lot of improvement, especially during the Methuen game. The kids are coming together and are very determined to get their first win," said WHS' coach Gerry Sullivan.

After the Hillies scored both of their touchdowns on their first two drives, the Wildcat defense held them down, especially in the second half when Haverhill was not able to notch any first downs and the Wildcats dominated with a ball-control attack.

"Our defense played great, we seemed to relax in the first quarter, after that, the defense played well," noted Sullivan. "We're still a young team."

Wilmington had a lot of positives this week. The offense stepped up, with QB Brian Tildsley (6-17-89 yards, three interceptions) showing much improvement with backs Steve O'Neill and Brian Burke rambling for 149 yards between them. O'Neill scored on a two yard TD for Wilmington's only score.

"Our offense is continuing to improve a lot, but penalties and turnovers continue to hurt us," admitted Sullivan after the game. "We're facing Andover this week and they haven't been as good as they have been in years past. We're going to go right at them, no fancy stuff and hopefully get a win out of it."

D' team rolls to 18-0 win

Two undefeated teams last week in Pop Warner action, with the Wilmington D team coming out on top, 18-0.

Following an interception by Jim Fennelly in the first quarter, Bo Boudreau opened the scoring with a 38 yard QB keeper for a TD to put Wilmington up 6-0. Jim Fennelly added Wilmington's second TD in the second quarter on a five yard run to put the Wildcats up 12-0 at the half.

Early in the fourth quarter, Josh Hiltz passed to Bo Boudreau for a 42 yard TD to put the game out of reach.

Wilmington is still unscored on in seven games.

Wilmington plays unbeaten Lexington Sunday at home. If Wilmington wins Sunday, they will play at the Eastern Mass semifinals at Malden Catholic in November.

Other outstanding players were Mike Herra (qb sack), Al Quinton (blocked punt), Pat Cushing, Bob French, Ryan Layton and Matt Collins.

C team

Wilmington 20 Burlington 0
Ryan Moroney scored on a 10 yard run, with Derek Maza powering in for the extra points. Jim Connors used his speed for a 70 yard TD run. Derek Maza added the extra point. Derek Maza closed out the scoring with a 10 yard power run.

The offensive line was super due to the tandem of Mike and Rory Warford. A 17 yard catch by Andrew Campbell, Jon Connors on a 60 yard comeback, Chris Censullo on a 25 yard scamper, Ryan Moroney, Ed Harrison, Joe Coto all played well for the winners.

The Blue/White defense was led by Jonathan Roman, Jim Sloan and Phillip DeRose.

B team

Burlington 12 Wilmington 0
Jim O'Donnell started the game with a 60 reception and run. Peter Kusa made a fine reception. Micky Moroney played a great game at quarterback.

Chris Butler did a good job at linebacker and Rob Rogers played a good game at noseguard. Jason Guy, Rich Carter and Dominic Carbone played well on defense.

A team

Wilmington 26 Burlington 6
The Wilmington Pop Warner Wildcat A squad improved to 5-2 with a 26-6 win over Burlington.

Dave Deamatto scored on two pass completions, one from Eric Clancy and a halfback option pass from Bill Harrison.

Megan Sullivan, Peter Vachon, Eric Hiltz, Bobby Jones, Aaron King and Dennis Morse led the offensive strike for the Wildcats.

Jamie Campbell, Scott Hubby, Erick Stadyk and Ben Cuza all combined to hold the Burlington Red Devils to six points. The A' squad next meets Lexington at the Glen Road Field, 2 p.m. Sunday.

Cold facts: guns & crime

by Bill Conlon

The National Rifle Association of America sent us an interesting set of statistics the other day, and they are worth reviewing here.

No, I'm not a "rabid gun nut" or a neo-Nazi. I'm one of the countless firearms owners who doesn't break gun laws, never did. I'm allowed the right to legitimate ownership of guns, and I'm in favor of keeping that right. In fact, I want to keep all of my rights. There is a problem with guns in America, but you and I aren't the problem.

According to the NRA statistics, "assault weapons" play a negligible role in homicides. In Massachusetts from 1985 - 1991 there were 1,537 homicides, according to state police records, of which seven involved so-called assault weapons. Seven. Obviously, "assault weapons" are not the problem, but we still hear harping about them.

Only seven percent of "armed career criminals" and "handgun predators" bought weapons from licensed gun dealers, according to the U.S. Department of Justice. The bulk of illegally-used guns come through theft; the black market or second-party transactions. Lawful gun dealers aren't the problem, but they get stuck with the new laws.

Federal law prohibits the sale of handguns to anyone under age 21, and prohibits the sale of shotguns and rifles to anyone under 18. Guns now in juvenile hands are coming through illegal channels, so the rest of the hype is just part of the Boston mayoral campaign. Kids can't buy guns legally.

Waiting periods for the purchase of firearms don't work. The FBI's Uniform Crime Reports state that California, with a 15-day wait, has a homicide rate 12.7 percent higher than the nation's, and 253 percent higher than Massachusetts'. Those same FBI stats show that all states with required waiting periods have higher rates of violent crime. So a waiting period isn't the answer.

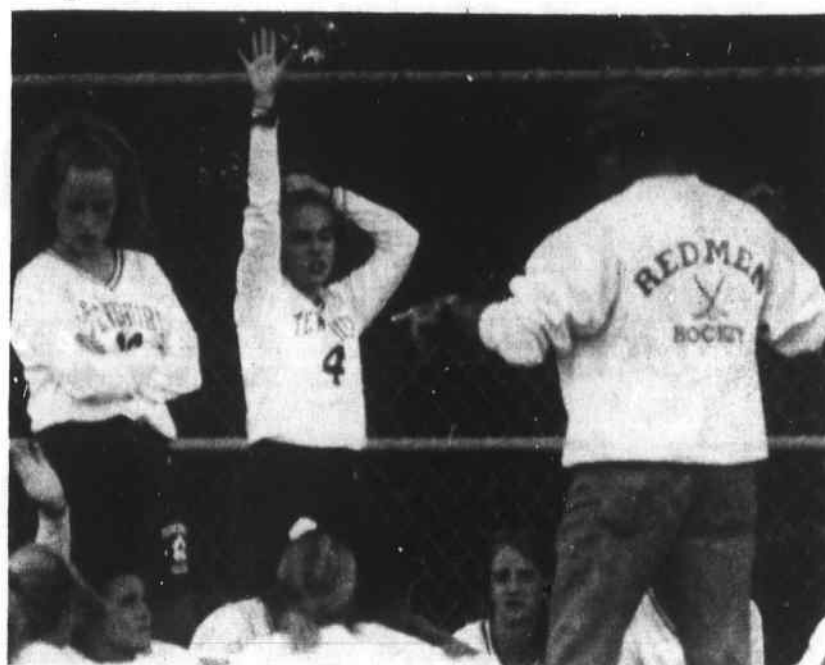

One out of every seven guns is a semi-automatic, which means one pull of the trigger produces a single bang, including rifles, pistols and shotguns. "Machine guns" (or full-autos) are tightly regulated by state and federal laws, and are rare in the U.S., both legally and criminally. Semi-autos use the same ammo as bolt actions, lever actions, etc., so a semi-auto is no more powerful than any other kind of gun. The "assault weapons" available in the U.S. are semi-auto, not "rock-n-roll" autos. Semi-automatics aren't a problem.

Limiting the number of guns one can buy in a given period opens up Pandora's box. If you can only buy one gun per month, what next? One per year? One per lifetime? None?

Instead of realistic laws that slap criminals silly, we hear repetitive rhetoric about how we have to take guns out of people's hands. That is a problem.

You can't remove guns from criminal hands through gun ownership laws. Period. Criminals don't follow laws.

We need laws that impose harsh, swift and sure penalties for the use of guns in commission of a crime. That means hard time, in a cell, and not probation. A slap on the wrist isn't going to solve anything.

Please coach

Also, we need to change juvenile justice laws. Kids who commit the crimes of an adult should be treated like an adult (although I'm in favor of locking up parents whenever a delinquent is nabbed). The U.S. Bureau of Justice Statistics reports that 38 percent of all convicted killers had juvenile convictions, but many states, and Massachusetts is one, doesn't inform the courts if a first-time adult offender owns any juvenile convictions.

Anybody here willing to argue that the justice system aids victims? That's got to change, if any lawmaker has the guts to stand up to the political correctness view that says criminals aren't to blame. They are the problem! So fix it!

Gun control is not as important as criminal control. Only the decent, law-abiding people are affected by new gun laws, while those same laws do nothing to stop crime.

Please call your state Rep. and your state Senator and tell them the way you feel about new gun control laws, before it's too late.

--- Tackle Box ---

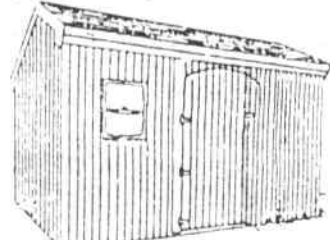

Talk about Murphy's Law... On Friday, I was in Acton visiting the Tepee archery shop, to buy a new arrow rest for my hunting bow. As I was waiting for the store to open, I heard WBZ radio report about the plane crash at Tew-Mac Airport. Boy, what a lousy way to get caught playing hockey from work.

Regarding the discovery of that little girl's body in Sturbridge: Did you notice that it was hunters who found the body? Luckily, the news reports didn't give the names of the hunters who made the discovery, a rare case of the media respecting hunters. Every year, hunters find dozens of bodies in the woods, so be prepared. Who knows if you won't trip over the next one?

858-0301Family Counseling offers new services

A Men's Group will be a new service offered by the Wilmington Family Counseling Services, Inc., as part of its fall programs. The group will focus on a variety of issues confronting men in our society. Dealing with interpersonal relationships, understanding and handling a wide range of emotions from love to anger, and interacting with children and other family members are just a few of the issues which will be discussed. Some men may be experiencing separation or divorce, others may want to improve their relationships with a spouse or girl friend, others may feel they have had few role models for how to deal with feelings and closeness.

The Men's Group will meet Thursday evenings from 8 to 9:30 beginning November 4 for 12 weeks. Walter Sherburne, an LICSW social worker, will lead the sessions.

An Early Sobriety Group also will be offered. The focus of the group will be on developing strategies for staying clean and sober and understanding the meaning of drugs or alcohol in one's life. The group will seek to empower members to learn to deal with their issues and express feelings instead of drinking and drugging over them. Requirements for participation are an awareness of an alcohol or drug problem and 30 days of abstinence.

This 12 week group will meet Thursdays from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. beginning November 4. The group will be led by Karl Peters, an LICSW social worker, who specializes in recovery from chemical dependency.

Growing up in a Dysfunctional Family: Healing the Past and Coping with the Present is the third group being offered this fall by the Wilmington Family Counseling Service. Many people look back on childhoods in which they suffered abuse, neglect, emotional or physical abandonment. Sometimes their parents were absorbed in alcohol or some other addiction. Sometimes they were responsible for parenting younger siblings and even their parents. As adults, they may minimize the effects of these experiences. However, chances are their lives are still affected by them. Issues that typically remain unresolved are intimacy, trust, control, anger, shame, and relationship problems. Through a combination of handouts, tapes, group exercises, and sharing of life experiences, this group will help clarify the past and its continuing effect on present day living.

This Growing Up in a Dysfunctional Family group will meet for 12 weeks Mondays from 7 to 8:30 p.m. beginning November 1. It will be led by Karl Peters, an LICSW social worker, whose specialty is substance abuse and adult children of alcoholics who himself grew up with an alcoholic parent.

To pre-register for any of these groups, call Dr. Carol Golub at the Wilmington Family Counseling Service, Inc. at 508-658-9889 by Friday, Oct. 29. As a non-profit agency fees are negotiated on an individual basis depending upon insurance, community, and income.

Change your clock, change your battery

With smoke detectors now in 82 percent of American homes, the problem is no longer homes without smoke detectors, but homes with smoke detectors that don't work.

Nearly one-third of all residential smoke detectors don't work because of worn out or missing batteries; a factor that contributes to many of the estimated 5,000 deaths and 100,000 - 200,000 injuries caused each year by home fires.

Smoke detector maintenance is one of the simplest, most effective ways to help reduce the thousands of deaths and injuries caused by home fires each year. In fact, a working smoke detector cuts the risk of dying in a home fire by nearly half.

To save lives and prevent needless injuries, the Wilmington Fire department has joined forces with the International Association of Fire Chiefs and Energizer Batteries for the annual "Change Your Clock Change Your Battery" campaign.

"Change" urges all Americans to adopt a simple, lifesaving habit: changing smoke detector batteries when clocks are changed back from daylight saving time each fall.

"A working smoke detector is a home's best defense against fire because it gives an early warning and critical extra seconds to escape," explains Fire Chief Daniel Stewart. "Unfortunately, people forget to install a fresh battery or they remove it to use in a toy or other home appliance."

In addition to changing smoke detector batteries, Fire Chief Stewart recommends that residents also use the "extra" hour from time change to take other fire safety measures including, checking the smoke detector itself by pushing the test button, changing flashlight batteries, planning "two ways out" and practicing those escape routes with the entire family.

For more information about fire safety, write "Change Your Clock, Change Your Battery," in care of Energizer Batteries, 9711 Fuessner Road, Mascoutah, Ill 62258.

Fred Foy the voice who said...

"The Lone Ranger Rides Again"

By KEN MAGUIRE

The Lone Ranger is a Halloween costume mainstay, right up there with Batman and Superman, which says a lot for a character that has been around for 60 years.

At least one youngster is bound to do his best Clayton Moore imitation this weekend at the doorstep of Fred Foy's Reading home. What the kid won't know is that the tall fellow standing before him has been a part of Lone Ranger history for nearly 50 years.

Foy was the radio and television announcer and narrator for the Lone Ranger dating back to 1948. His booming voice would stir up Americans from coast to coast. Recalling those "Thrilling days of yesteryear," he'd describe how, "The Lone Ranger Rides Again!"

And today his career comes full circle with an induction in the National Broadcasters Hall of Fame. The ceremony took place last Friday at the "Friends of Old Radio" annual convention in Newark, New Jersey.

Other Hall of Fame inductees include Don Wilson and Jack Benny. Not bad company.

"I'm thrilled that they would consider my joining that group," Foy said just before departing for New Jersey last week. "In my career, I never dreamed that this type of honor would be given to me. It's wonderful to think that you made a mark in the radio business. I'm on cloud nine."

Joining Foy was his wife, Frances, three children and two grandchildren, along with other family members. The induction caps a long and storied career that began back in Detroit, Foy's hometown.

It began in the early 1940s before he served his country in World War II. However, radio was not exactly his dream job.

"I started out basically to be an actor," Foy said from his living room, decorated with Frances' paintings and photos of their grandchildren. "But as things would have it, radio was the way it went and I'm certainly not sorry for it today, that's for sure."

The highlight of those early days, if it's possible to narrow down to one, would probably be the day Foy actually played the Lone Ranger. The regular voice at that time, before it moved to television, was Brace Breemer, who was stuck with laryngitis.

"Brace arrived with a bad case of laryngitis," Foy explained. "There was no way he could go on. I was thrilled to play the role. It was a fun thing to do. At least now I can say I was the Lone Ranger once."

The final live broadcast of the Lone Ranger was in 1955, when the show was moved to television. Foy remained the announcer and narrator, taping his pieces in Detroit from where they were mailed to New York.

He loved his craft, but felt that something was missing during the taped segments. There is no substitute, he says for the feeling of a live performance.

"Those were wonderful years," he said. "There was more excitement in doing a live show. You're less on your toes when you're being taped and you know you can do it over again."

In the 60s Foy moved to New York after accepting a job offer from ABC. He went on to become the announcer of the Dick Cavett Show, which lasted seven years. A few years ago, Foy was back with Cavett for The Return of the Dick Cavett Show, but that was taken off the air in a few months.

Several years ago Foy wrote a short book of memoirs called "Fred Foy from XYZ to ABC, A Fond Recollection." It is introduced by Cavett, who also has some fond recollections.

"I never dreamed that the thrilling voice that brought the well-known thundering hoofbeats into my living room in Nebraska would some day announce my own show," Cavett wrote. "The mere sound of Fred Foy's extraordinarily resonant speech mechanism gives me gooseflesh of one sort or another - as either a passive or active participant in adventure."

It's his theatrical voice that made him famous, but Foy says he has never practiced his speech, massaged his throat, or softened his esophagus with magical herbs.

"I guess it just comes naturally," he said. "I've never done anything to keep in form."

Whatever he didn't do, it worked back in 1948, when producers of the Lone Ranger were searching for a new announcer. After the war, Foy had returned to his announcing job in Detroit at WXYZ (as in his book title "XYZ to ABC") and auditioned for the part.

"I was one of many who auditioned for it, and I happened to be the guy whose number was drawn out of the hat," said a modest Foy.

In addition to the Lone Ranger, he announced and narrated for the Green Hornet, and Sgt. Preston of the Yukon. They were all the creations of George W. Trendle.

Foy is quick to stand up for the radio-version of Lone Ranger, which was forgotten by many after the show moved to television. Clayton Moore became the masked one, while Jay Silverheels was his sidekick Tonto. But in the old days, Brace Breemer was the main man, and Tonto was played by John Todd.

About The Towns

by Phyllis Nissen

Food Court goes upscale

FOOD COURT GOES UPSCALE AND UPSTAIRS - If all goes well with the variances, Board of Appeals and Planning Board, the Burlington Mall food court might just take a step up - to the second floor of the mall; and out - expanding by 5,600 square feet.

If the plan goes through, the current food court and old cinema will be converted to retail space; the loading dock area downsized; and the court moved upstairs, as a circular structure with two additional concessionaires, bringing the total to 12. The closings of the Lord & Taylor and Jordan Marsh restaurants are expected to add more customers to the court which has a special permit for 369 seats but could expand to seat about 780.

According to mall attorney Carl King, doubling the amount of seating in the food court will not significantly affect traffic in the parking lot.

The mall is seeking two variances: a building-to-ground area variance and a height variance. The first variance depends upon whether the Burlington Board of Appeals views the mall as five lots or one. What's clear about the second is that "it's clearly not a rezoning" according to Planning Board member Peter Coppola in the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

One planning board member called the height variance a "hot potato."

Now there's an idea. Meanwhile, back at the Escadrille ... by an official two-thirds vote, Burlington Town Meeting has voted to rezone a bit of Cambridge Street from general industrial to general business so that the Cafe Escadrille can expand.

Deeming the expansion consistent with the Burlington Master Plan, the Planning Board is in favor of the expansion which permits compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act and the addition of a 150-guest function room.

THE BUS STOPS HERE - After a more than two hour, sometimes acrimonious debate, the Medford City Council has settled upon the locations of three bus stops in the Medford Square area. Basically, according to the "Medford Daily Mercury," the council made "only one real change" in the plan submitted to it by the Office of Community Development.

During the debate, several potential stops were suggested and naturally, notes the Mercury, every proposal that was made was opposed by significant numbers of residents and/or business owners. Reasons against the stops ranged from noise to pollution, health hazards, and loss of parking spaces.

"I can't believe we're still arguing about this after all these years," said Rick Seigel of Ruth's (and of Burlington). "I've heard bright and intelligent people make terrible mistakes before ... let's try it in one place for two months, and if that doesn't work, let's try it someplace else for two months."

The bus stops will be at 23-39 Riverside Avenue; West Transit Way; and the intersection of Salem and Ashland streets - for the moment, anyway.

ATLANTIC MAKES WAVES - How hard is it to find help these days?

Arnold Rubin, president of Atlantic Food Mart in Reading, is offering a $100 bounty to any customer who can recruit him an employee - and he's packing that offer into at least one grocery bag per customer.

That's how hard it is to recruit help these days, according to Rubin in the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle." Last month, he sent the following memo to his employees: "If you recruit and we hire a new employee to join the Atlantic team during the month of September, and you and the new employee continue with Atlantic through December 31, then you will receive an extra $100 bonus the week before Christmas. Happy hunting!"

Response to that memo was minimal.

Fred Foy of radio fame

"Many people still believe the only Lone Ranger is Clayton Moore," Foy said. "Actually it was Brace Breemer and John Todd, as Tonto, who were really the originators."

The Golden Age

As Cavett put it in his introduction to Foy's memoirs, "To have missed the Lone Ranger at dinner time would have been as unthinkable as missing dinner itself. I'm sorry for people of a later generation...whose scalp doesn't tingle a bit at the William Tell overture."

Foy agrees. He said there is nothing quite like sitting back, closing your eyes and making the words come to life, as opposed to passively watching television, as most people do today.

"It would just come to life in your mind," Foy explained. "You used to use your imagination. You painted your own picture. It was great. You could stretch out on the couch, lie back and listen. It was the focal point of the evening."

Although those "thrilling days of yesteryear" may be hard to find on the airwaves these days, the love of the Golden Age of old radio is alive and kicking, Foy says.

Since leaving ABC about seven years ago and moving with Fran to Reading (to be near their daughter, while still having access to a big city), Foy has been freelancing and often has speaking engagements at conventions of old radio lovers across the country. He said old radio has a "tremendous following" throughout the land.

In fact, Foy says, there may be hope for the future. While visiting his grandson's classroom in Woburn, he spoke to the children about the fun he had working with the Lone Ranger.

"They were absolutely enthralled," he said. "I told them all about the show and how it was done and played some excerpts for them. They were absolutely glued to it. They really were quite wrapped up in it. I was amazed."

For now, Foy is relishing his induction to the Hall of Fame, although that does not mean he's out of the game. He says he will continue to work, doing mainly voice-overs for commercials and documentaries, for "as long as the voice holds out."

There was no single greatest moment in his career, Foy says, but if he had to choose, the old radio days would be his pick.

"There are so many great memories. The people who I had the pleasure of working with were so terrific. My best loved years were the Lone Ranger years. We were like a family. I always think of that very warmly. It was a great time."

And a great career.

Asthma Care Training Course

Breathless, Inc., a Non-Profit Organization for Asthma and Allergy, will sponsor an Asthma Care Training Course (A.C.T.) for RNs and LPNs on October 30. Participants will earn 5.0 contact hours.

Estimates from the National Institute of Health state that between 10 and 15 million Americans seek medical care for asthma, and another 10 million rely on non-prescription medications to treat their asthma. Yet public awareness of asthma and how to manage it lags behind that of other less important diseases. According to the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America, the education of parents with asthmatic children can improve and facilitate care.

The A.C.T. Training Course will train professionals to teach parents and children the values and techniques of the A.C.T. program. The goals of the program are to teach families how to reduce the frequency and severity of asthma attacks; increase their knowledge of symptoms, causes and treatment regimens; and explore attitudes and feelings about asthma and its treatment.

The A.C.T. Accredited Training Course will be held at Hale Municipal Hospital, 140 Lincoln St., Haverhill, on October 30, from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Cost is $20 and covers a light lunch and materials.

For further information and to register for the course, contact Breathless, Inc. at (508) 372-ASMA.

School Notes

by Phyllis Nissen

Pilot program successful

A HAT IS A HAT IN MALDEN BUT DEFINING SPANDEX IS A STRETCH - The Malden School Committee has refused a student request to relax Malden High's dress code when it comes to wearing hats on school premises.

Although a student survey revealed that students almost unanimously disagreed with the administration's enforcement of the school dress code, the word from Malden High Principal John Wright - according to the "Malden Daily News" - is that students have no valid reason to have their hats on in the high school, be the students in class, the corridors or the cafeteria.

Wright cited the wearing of hats in urban high schools as a possible "gang-related" issue.

One student representative who questioned the selective enforcement of the dress code which also prohibits Spandex and sweatpants was told that it is "far easier to enforce the hat rule than to pass judgment on other forms of clothing."

"If there are violations of the dress codes with Spandex and sweatpants," said Wright, "they are referred to teachers."

WOBURN PILOT PROGRAM IS SMASH SUCCESS - Retired Altavesta School Principal Francis Mooney and other staff members designed a pilot program two summers ago that was so successful last year at Altavesta that a new, improved version of it has been launched in six other elementary schools this year, and will start in three more schools next year.

The "school values" program, according to the Woburn Edition

The Little Theatre plans talent search

Sal Salamone, director, Tewksbury Little Theatre announces the annual Talent Search Open House Registration for their 93-94 productions.

The season's production will be Neil Simon's comedy "Plaza Suite," "Escape to the Blue Planet," and "My Tower in Manhattan." For a local Rock and Acting Group Salamone will direct three Shakesperian Scenes written in 1600 but as contemporary as today - "Hamlet," "The Taming of the Shrew," and "Romeo and Juliet."

The Tewksbury 4-H Photo Club will display their Galaxy of 1993 photos and guest artists their paintings. The Tewksbury Little Theatre Players will perform scenes from "Peter Pan" and "Hansel and Gretel" on Sunday afternoon November 14, from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Tewksbury United Methodist Church, Main and South streets, Tewksbury. Salamone will answer all questions.

of the "Daily Times Chronicle, evolved from discussions about what's wrong with kids today.

The revised program eliminates a former tie-in to the "Student of the Month" program and moves the monthly themes to a quarterly basis. The four basic values taught are: friendship, respect, citizenship, and integrity.

Altavesta invested in the program with banners, monthly poster contests and creative writing exercises, all integrated into the regular daily curriculum. The program also encompassed a big brother - big sister program pairing older students with younger ones for various reading or project work, the idea behind that being to get students to interact.

The values, according to Mooney, must be taught every day to be effective, and effective does not necessarily mean causing dramatic change. The big brother - big sister program worked in that fifth graders could sometimes be seen helping second graders get off a bus. The adopt-a-grandparent component was not successful because the elderly did not respond in enough numbers to allow one grandparent for every classroom.

The school council - a sort of "court of last resort" for students who misbehaved repeatedly - was successful.

IF YOU'RE LOOKING FOR A POLITICALLY CORRECT SCHOOL SYMBOL, LOOK IN

OUR MAIL where the possible answer to one local debate over the appropriateness of Winchester's Sachem has appeared:

"I think that the University should adopt a box of crayons as its mascot for two reasons," writes Matt Fluggier in "The Massachusetts Daily Collegian," the site of a series of letters about UMass-Amherst's "Minuteman," also seen elsewhere in Massachusetts.

"First, all of the colors are included in a box of crayons; second, most people associate crayons with childhood, a time in everyone's life that can be considered pre-racist. I mean, how can you dislike crayons? Actually, the radical feminist ideologist might dislike their phallic design. If that is the case, then dump the crayons out on a tray and stick them in the oven. All of the crayons will blend into a colorful mass that is ultimately inoffensive."

We hear that the native American who used to frequent Amherst is a figment of the past but according to UMass Chancellor David Scott, the Minuteman is here to stay.

Now, about Winchester

Tips for safe Halloween Trick-or-Treating

Although having the right costume may be a child's primary concern at Halloween, the safety of the experience, including both the outing and the treats he or she gathers, is likely to be the parents. Regardless of the time of day children will be prowling the neighborhood in search of food, make sure they wear a mask that lets them breathe easily and that they make their rounds with friends, not alone.

If living in an area where Trick-or-Treating still takes place at night, further precautions will ensure a child's well-being. Parents should take extra measures to avoid hazards like motor vehicle accidents involving trick-or-treating children. Place reflectors on their costumes, insist that they walk on sidewalks using a flashlight and be sure they are accompanied by an adult. If possible, try to organize neighborhood trick-or-treating to take place before dark. Remind children to only approach homes where lights are on, signaling that they're welcome.

According to Dr. Carolyn Sedor, a pediatrician at Wilmington Pediatrics, Inc. at the Winchester Hospital Family Medical Center in Wilmington, once the children have returned home safely, there are some simple tests to take to assure that children have a healthy Halloween without having to sacrifice the goodies they've collected.

The first potential problem is tainted food, though that's far less pervasive than the discomforts associated with overeating or with ingesting too much sugar. "I've never personally seen a child who received tainted food," says Dr. Sedor, "but I have seen lots of kids with belly-aches from too much candy." A good way to guard against food that's been tampered with is to carefully examine all the food a child brings home. Discard any candy whose wrapping has been opened or disturbed. Inspect fruit to make sure the skin is intact. If not, throw it out. If a child receives baked goods, it's probably wisest to dispose of them unless you know - and trust - the neighbor who prepared them. To help ensure that you have the chance to spot any problems, urge children not to dig into their treats until they get home.

To protect a child from the unpleasant effects of a stomach ache or sugar high, ration their cache. "Some parents do a very good job by confiscating the treats and then letting the child make one or two selections each day," says Dr. Sedor. The appropriate amount of food to allot will vary depending on the age of the child and the size of the treats -- from bite size to full size candy bars, for example. Parents are likely to already be aware of their child's sugar tolerance, which can help them plan a sensible regimen.

Should a child go to a neighborhood Halloween party instead of out Trick-or-Treating, parents can help control the child's eating if they are there to monitor it. And, if they are the organizer of the event, they can help by putting out healthy choices as well as the standard Halloween fare.

If on November 1st a child wakes up with a stomach ache, and the parent is confident that overeating is the cause, they may be able to sit it out for a day or so. However, if the belly-ache is accompanied by other symptoms, such as a fever, they should seek medical attention promptly. Since medication is not recommended for stomach aches in children, don't be tempted to give a child medicine. Instead, place a call to the pediatrician who will be a guide to the proper next steps.

Dr. Sedor also has some helpful advice to the people passing out treats. "The treat doesn't have to be food. Children love little gadgets and toys, such as whistles, key chains and pencils." She cautions that some of these objects may be too small to give to the littlest goblins, but for bigger kids they are an appreciated alternative. Even a gift certificate to a restaurant can be a good option, though she reminds parents that when using that present they also need to be attentive to the healthiness of what their youngsters consume.

ANTHONY MANCONI

"Make the world go away and get it off my shoulders." Folks, those are the first words of a song that was popular a few years ago. It unfortunately is the theme song and attitude of many people today. Well, folks, the world won't go away and you and I can't hide from it either. We have to walk or drive out of our front gates every day into the "real world."

When I walked the "bounds" of the Middlesex East Area, I would say "Good Morning" to everyone I met. Almost everyone returned the salutation with a cheery "Good Morning." A few tried to spoil it all with a "What the heck's good about it?" My reply was "Just seeing you makes it a good morning for me."

Doing business without advertising is like "winking" at a pretty girl in the dark - you know what you are doing, but no one else does... Many of you, I am sure, know what a "dead fish" handshake feels like. It's a hand extended reluctantly by a person as a sign of peace.

Kathy came home from church Sunday morning and shouted to me, "I wish they would cut that hand shaking at Mass." "Why?" I asked, "Don't you want to be friendly?" "Well, look her Bozo breath," she snapped, "This kid in the pew in front of me was wiping his nose with his right hand all during Mass, then turned and said as he shook my hand 'Peace be with you lady.' He probably gave me his darn cold!"

When a dentist says, "Open wide, please." You aren't sure what he means - your 'Mouth' or your 'Wallet'... When Yogi Berra went to school, he chose English as a foreign language... Woburn officer Gerry Gately asked the bank manager, "Can you give me a description of the missing teller?" "Well," the manager said, "He is six feet tall and $5,000 short. I should have known there was something funny about him. He told me he was in Yale for four years." "Gee!" Officer Gately said, "Four years in Yale! That's very good qualifications." "Yes," the bank manager replied, "but his name is Yimmy Yohnson!"... Mario DiMino of Stoneham was filling out a job application. He answered the question, "What machines can you operate?" "Gumball, Slot and Pinball machines."... Folks, there are no

It will also feature an afternoon of speakers on the following topics: Diet and Complications at 12:30 p.m., Prevention of Complications from Diabetes at 1 p.m., Diabetes and Renal Complications at 1:230 p.m., Complications Concerning Diabetic Eye Conditions at 1:40 p.m. Treatment of Diabetic Retinopathy at 2 p.m.; Foot Concerns of the Diabetic Patient at 2:20 p.m.; Oral Care and Diabetes at 3 p.m.; Exercise Guidelines for Diabetics with Complications at 3:20 p.m. and Getting in Control, DCCT Results at 3:40 p.m.

Free drawings for blood glucose monitors and personal consultations with a certified diabetic dietitian and diabetes educator will take place on the hour from 1 to 4 p.m.

The public is invited to attend any or all of the events. No registration is necessary. For more information call the NEMH public relations office at (617) 979-7016.

The doctor told my cousin Mario, "If you don't stop chasing after women, you won't live a long life." "But doctor!" Mario exclaimed, "I'm as strong as an ox." There are many libraries in America that were built as generous gifts of Andrew Carnegie the great industrialist and philanthropist. MOVIES

The Nightmare Before Christmas

by Rochelle Flynn

"The Nightmare Before Christmas" Voices by Danny Elfman, Chris Sarandon, Catherine O'Hara, William Hickey, Ken Page, Paul Reubens. Directed by Tim Burton. Denise DiNovi. Screenplay by Caroline Thompson. Rated PG.

Tim Burton, who created the characters and the story, as well as produced "The Nightmare Before Christmas," offers audiences a uniquely creative twist on sickly sweet holiday classics. His vision is imaginative and unusual and deserves to be seen. But it should have been seen as a 20-minute short, and not stretched into a 65-minute mini-movie.

It is, simply put, outrageous that Disney's Touchstone Pictures expects people to fork over nearly seven dollars for a movie that is half the length of most feature films and contains only about a third of the content.

As visually delightful, unusual and witty as this blend of stop-motion and regular animation may be, the film is remarkably short on plot. Several of the songs are little more than filler and what story there is doesn't really have a clear audience.

Though there is much creepy, and funny, irony, there isn't enough to hold an adult's attention even for the hour this flick lasts. And the content will sail right over the heads of most children younger than nine or ten, and certainly all of those who still maintain certain holiday beliefs.

Jack Skellington, the Pumpkin King of Halloweentown, feels something lacking in his bones. He isn't fulfilled; every year is the same and it's all getting frightfully boring. Walking off his ennui, Jack stumbles into the door leading to Christmastown and becomes enraptured by the bright toys, glistening snow and general sense of happiness. And he wants some of it.

The voices are as unusual as "Nightmare's" style, featuring the singing voice of Danny Elfman as Skellington, who also wrote the (rather sappy) music, lyrics and score. Chris Sarandon provides Skellington's speaking voice and Catherine O'Hara is Sally, the Frankensteinian rag doll who is the only creature to understand Jack's unusual yearnings. William Hickey, Ken Page, and Paul Reubens (a.k.a. Pee-wee Herman) all lend their offbeat talents to this equally offbeat production.

The story, much like that of "Edward Scissorhands" is about an outsider trying to find himself in a community that doesn't understand him. But we've already seen Burton's take on this, both in "Scissorhands" and again in his "Batman." Though this is one of the more visually arresting films on the market, it would have had a more lasting impact as a clever short than a draggy featurette.

"The Beverly Hillbillies" Starring Jim Varney, Lily Tomlin, Diedrich Bader, Erika Eleniak, Cloris Leachman, Dabney Coleman. Directed by Penelope Spheeris. Produced by Ian Bryce, Spheeris. Screenplay by Lawrence Konner, Mark Rosenthal, Jim Fisher, Jim Staahl. Rated PG.

Pop culture can be mighty strange. Where else can you pay almost seven dollars to watch a movie based on a TV show that was popular over 20 years ago? Well, the Clampetts and their fish-out-of-water story diverted people during the Vietnam War. Now that we have Bosnia, Somalia, Haiti and a recession, those Ozark hayseeds have made another appearance.

Were they worth bringing them back to life? Yes and no. The movie is pleasant, mildly entertaining and will certainly give you a couple of chuckles. But it's really no better, or no worse, than what we can still catch in reruns. However, it does make you wonder where director Penelope Spheeris left her cutting sense of humor, so apparent in her rock documentary, "The Decline of Western Civilization," and her last flick, "Wayne's World."

Spheeris took the most obvious route with this project, and the result is a tad too bland for those of us who know her work. Though Spheeris wasted many opportunities to exploit the Clampett's trip to Hollywood, the very fact that the Clampetts have been given a second life will no doubt appeal to nostalgia-craving baby boomers. The writers may not have come up with anything more than an extended TV plot, but there will always be something endearing about this backwater Ozark family with the Midas touch and a friendly outlook.

The plot is as simple as the title sequence in the old series. When Jim Varney's Jed strikes oil instead of the rabbit he was aiming for, he instructs his clan to pack up for "paradise." Jed reckons the wilds of Beverly Hills will be just the spot to find a suitable wife to help him raise his tomboy daughter, Elly May. Once settled in their enormous pink mansion, dastardly Lea Thompson and Rob Schneider hope to part the Clampetts from their money. But the Clampetts, ever blessed with a weird good luck karma, are not so easily robbed.

With the exception of Diedrich Bader, whose Jethro is a one-note moron, it is the cast, and not the storyline, which provides the corn-pone humor. Jim Varney imbues his Jed Clampett with an integrity and earthy wisdom that you wouldn't have expected from a guy who made a fortune in all those annoying "Ernest" movies.

Lily Tomlin as the ultra-efficient Jane Hathaway is all gawky mannerisms in her funny, over-the-top performance. Dabney Coleman is unctuous and scheming as Mr. Drysdale and Cloris Leachman is a bundle of energy as the cantankerous, moonshine-making Granny. Elaine Eleniak is refreshingly sweet as the rough and tumble Elly May.

Movies based on TV shows and characters are becoming all too common, with everything from "Dragnet" to "The Coneheads" providing fodder for Hollywood. And though there is obviously a decided lack of imagination in the genre, the cast of "The Beverly Hillbillies" helps it to rise just above complete mediocrity.

Short Takes

The Joy Luck Club is a first-rate adaptation of Amy Tan's novel. The story of four Chinese women and their relationships with their immigrant mothers is tough and honest and amazingly perceptive. Maternal relationships are at the film's core, but it also explores the struggles of adjusting to a new country while your children leave behind old ways. The result is a richly textured emotional landscape that will stay with you long after the film has ended. Rated R. ****

Mr. Jones stars Richard Gere as a charismatic, but none-too-believable manic depressive who becomes romantically involved with his psychiatrist, Lena Olin. Her Swedish accent is as uneven as the cliché-riddled script, her cousin, played with infinite depth by Michelle Pfeiffer. This is a cinematic delight in every possible sense. Rated PG. ****

Demolition Man is a futuristic sci-fi action flick told with so much campy humor you can turn a blind eye to the weak plot. Sylvester Stallone is a renegade cop taken out of a cryogenic freezer to capture escaped psychopath Wesley Snipes. There is little logic here, but special effects and tongue-in-cheek chuckles make it worth watching. Rated R. ***

The Good Son stars Macaulay Culkin as an angelic-looking little boy who is actually a snarling monster, though only cousin Elijah Wood knows for sure. Of course, Wood can't get anyone to believe him. The plot suffers from a lack of subtlety and therefore from a lack of tension, as Culkin's evil nature is never allowed to gain any momentum. Though the boys do wonders with their roles, the script would have been better suited to a television production. Interesting to note that the majority of the film was shot on Cape Ann. Rated R. 1/2

The Fugitive is THE movie to see this year. It's an engrossing, edge-of-your-seat, heart-pumper of a flick with some of the best action and chase scenes ever captured on film. Harrison Ford plays a celebrated surgeon arrested for the brutal murder of his wife (Sela Ford). After a daring escape, he spends most of the movie trying to elude a U.S. Marshall (Tommy Lee Jones) who is every bit as clever and tenacious as Ford. Great fun. Rated PG-13. ****
